- 135 Cuthbert's American Microscope (1827) - Purchased Dec. 1884.
Compound dioptic; simple do., reflecting mechanical stage; superstr. to carry bottles, life bag etc., 3 eye pieces, rotating nose piece with 6 simple lenses, 4 sets of reflectors (specula - on the reversed Newtonian principle) (plc) 3 Liebkühns; forceps with ball & socket movements. Condensing lens, plane & concave mirrors, hand forceps; diaphragm plate; 12 slides containing 4 objects each & sundry fittings. It is quite the most perfect specimen of an old microscope of such a date. For use as a dioptic Microscope the piece with a solid disk must be put where the tail piece now is, & the tail piece is then attached. The old looking angle piece near the mirror & condenser is to carry the dioptic disk of lenses for use as a simple microscope.
